Indian Affairs. As soon as we shall have been united with the Dominion, our local Government will cease to have any control over FOR SKEENA & PORT ESSINGTON Indian affairs, and the Federal Government will succeed the local, and have the exclusive management of the lndian reserves and Indian tribes. Hitherto we have done but little for the Indians It is true that we have, with some exceptions and without expending more than a thousand dollars a year, managed to live in peace with them during, the last thirteen years. The Bute Inlet massacre cost the old colony of British Columbia about $80,000 to catch a halfdozen or so of cut-throats; but it is admitted on all hands, by those who are competent to form a correct judgment, that that vast sum of money was simply squandered,—as a thousand dollars properly expended would have been ample to have accomplished even a better result. We have also had two or three Indian difficulties in the Gulf of Georgia, and two or three more on the West Coast. Quite a number of settlers have been murdered by our Indian population. But we have had no Indian difficulties such as have occurred in Washington Territory and Oregon. Possibly, our immunity from Indian wars is as much due to the isolation of the Indians, owing to geographical separation and dispersion, as to the just and humane policy with which they have been always treated. DODGE'S REAPER & MOWER ARCADE OYSTER SALOON AND On Vancouver and Queen Charlotte Islands, and along the coast of the Mainland, the Indians invariably inhabit the shore; consequently, they are easily reached. Were there a prairie interior to those islands, and were it possible to scale the mountain wall that forms the Mainland coast, and were they provided with horses like the interior Indians in the southern portion of the colony and in the neighboring States, it is very prob able that there would have been many more Indian difficulties than have occurred. Our coast Indians, however, MOWERS being unaccustomed to live elsewhere than on the sea-shore, and unable to move from place to place except in canoes, are consequently more easily overawed, and much more certainly brought to justice for any offenses committed by them, than the warrior horse- Pitt's Thresher Geared man of the Plans. Altogether, we have probably not more than from 12,000 to 15.000 Indians at the utmost, on our entire coast. Some estimates in former times placed their numbers higher. But there was an error in enumerating the Indians from the southern part of Alaska with our own. In the interior of the Maiuland, there are probably 7,000,-at the utmost not more than 10,000, -widely dispersed throughout the country,-the A census would probably reveal the fact has taken great pains in trying to get a competent Asthat our entire Indian population does not exceed 25,000 nor fall below 18,000. Now, whether we consider them at the meximum or minimum number, they constitute an important element in our population. Industrially they are worth to the country, at the price at which they sell oil and furs, possibly $250,000—ten dollars a head per annum. The number employed as domestic servants or as common laborers throughout the colony would not exceed probably three hundred,— worth say $50,000 per annum. Commercially, then, the annual value of the Indian population is about $300,000. Now, this is not a large sum in comparison with their numbers; but it is too importent an item in our industry to be overlooked. It is evident, however, to the most casual observer, that the Indian population is gradually diminishing, -mainly through drunkenness and vice. Public opinion has not hitherto warranted the local Government in imposing additional taxes to improve the moral and physical condition of the Indian. The country has been too poor to bear it. Confederation, then, will not come a whit too soon to benefit the Indians. By the Act of Union, all our Indian reserves will be transferred to Canada. The next act of the Dominion ought to be the appointment of Indian Commissioners and Agents, whose duty it ought to be to gather the Indians upon reserves, and instruct them in agriculture or in some art whereby the young, at least, might be taught to give up their savage life, whilst all classes of the Indian population might be protected from vice and intemperance. We know of no way in which the ladians can be preserved, except by gathering them upon reserves under the control of Indian Agents,-nor no other means by which they can be protected against the whisky-fiends who supply them with liquid poison. At present they are scat-tered far and wide along the shores, and on the banks of our rivers and lakes. They are mixed up with our settlements: and are always causing little difficulties that settlers are compelled to submit to for fear of having their stock or crop injured. The gathering of them, then, apon reservations is as much required to promote the settlement of the country as it is for the advantage of the Indians. Whether their labor would in that case be worth as much to the country as at present is a question. Yet we see but mparatively little difficulty in so locating the reserves that their indust.y might

Two Irish divines, notwithstanding their professional advantages, could not see their way clear, took the wrong road, and, like lost sheep, went astray. Starting from Wastwater (a small lake) in the morning with the intention of going to Buttermere, and coming to where two roads or trails diverge, we instinctively followed the easy trail of the Liza river in stead of attempting the precipitous Scarf Gap trail, which was the trail to Buttermere, of which fact we were entirely ignorant, notwithstanding we were the possessors of one of those aloresaid maps. On asking the landlord of the Angler's Inn at Ennerdale why there were no guide posts at the road crossings, I was answered: They believed in free trade in that part of the country, and he thought that if guide posts were put up they would'nt be allowed to stand long; the other hotel-keepers and the "guides" would knock them down. Hence during the few days' ramble I have had, I found that I never turned up at night at the place I proposed in the morning. I generally found I was shunted on to the wrong lake. On the road-as I upposed-to Buttermere, we inquired how far we were from that lake : "Buttermere !" he yelled out in an exciting tone, as if he had struck a hundred ounce nugget; "Buttermere! ha! ha! Buttermere! why, yer on the road to Ennerdale! ha! ha!" On telling him
